working with clients to develop cardholder data protection programs

Payment processors, credit card brands and increasing regulatory pressures are requiring companies to demonstrate compliance with the strict controls of the Data Security Standard (DSS). Merchants that accept credit card payments are required to undergo an annual compliance assessment with the Payment Card Industry (PCI) DSS and submit a compliance report. However, many companies either have poor PCI compliance processes in place or lack the resources to evaluate controls for compliance.

WHAT WE DO

Organizations often need assistance establishing an ongoing security and compliance program that helps maintain the confidentiality of the organization's most critical data. Leveraging our cross-functional IT consulting and industry experience, we work with clients to identify information security weaknesses, build a more secure network and develop sustainable cardholder data protection programs.
